Art of Legendary Western Artist Kenneth M Freeman Protected by Fine Art Registry

Curator of the artistic legacy of Western artist Kenneth M. Freeman, launches traveling exhibition, currently at the Booth Western Art Museum in Atlanta, using Fine Art Registry secure, tagging and registration system to protect his artworks.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

PR Log (Press Release) – Mar 04, 2010 – (Phoenix, AZ – 5 March 2010) Having one traveling museum exhibition, Artist at Work: The Kenneth M. Freeman Legacy currently at the Booth Western Art Museum in Atlanta, and sending a second museum exhibition on the road in June 2010 named Portraits of the West: The Kenneth M. Freeman Legacy, Bonnie Adams, curator of the Kenneth M. Freeman Legacy Collection, had some unique challenges to make certain the collection was protected. Bonnie Adams decided to protect the priceless originals and the authorized limited edition prints using the Fine Art Registry patented, secure tagging and registration system.

Ken Freeman Legacy, Artist At Work Exhibition

Born in 1935 in Chicago, Ken Freeman's formative years were marked by two major passions: art and cowboys. He won numerous art scholarships and went on to study classical painting at the American Academy of Art in Chicago, IL. His major influences were Rembrandt, Rubens and John Singer Sargent. His studies were followed by a successful 20-year career as an illustrator.

In the late 1970s, Freeman moved to Scottsdale to fulfill his life dreams of becoming a full time fine artist and a cowboy – he lived the life and painted the life he was living. Some of his best known art graces the covers of books by Western authors including Louis L'Amour and Will James. He created original work for Hamilton Collectibles, a beautiful ten-plate series entitled Proud Indian Families. Many of his original paintings have been reproduced as limited edition prints. He became known affectionately as the "Rembrandt of the Rodeo" and referred to himself as a "Jewish Cowboy."

"Ken's old masters' technique was very time consuming but the outcome is extraordinary. It is the only way to achieve the depth of colors and warm layers of content that will pass the test of time," says Edward Holmes, president of Western Artists of America whose organization presented Adams with Freeman's Lifetime Achievement Award at the premier of the traveling exhibit at the The Booth Western Art Museum, an Affiliate of the Smithsonian Institution, in Atlanta, on January 16th, 2010.

The Artist at Work exhibition, with its centerpiece, a recreation of Ken Freeman's studio, continues at the Booth Western Art Museum until May 22, 2010. Next, the Portraits of the West exhibition opens in Prescott, AZ on June 24th 2010 through October 2010 at The Phippen Art Museum. Other venues and dates for the traveling exhibition are still being finalized.

Prior to the opening of the exhibition at the Booth Western Art Museum, Bonnie Adams decided to adopt the Fine Art Registry patented system which combines a tamper-evident, unforgeable, high-tech tag and a corresponding, full record in a secure database of all the data required by the Getty Object ID to identify art objects and more.

"FAR offers the artist and the collector an invaluable system of registering, archiving, and sorting their precious items," continues Adams. "I wanted a system that I could work with to help me organize and document my collection. FAR offers just that. It is my responsibility as the curator of this important collection to protect and promote the artwork. FAR offers solutions to both these concerns. With the secure database to archive and record all the artwork and collectables and a sales site to promote and sell from and with access to legal resources experienced in Art Fraud, FAR offers the artist and collector a peace of mind – the ultimate benefit."

"I plan to tag and register all of Ken's original works of art (this includes the paintings, illustrations, drawings, sketches, unfinished pieces, bronzes - all things he created), all the reproductions that the Kenneth M Freeman Legacy will release, all the artifacts that Ken used as reference for his artwork. I also plan to tag and register all of my own artwork and personal collections," says Bonnie Adams.

"When I made the decision to start touring Ken Freeman's original artworks to museums and other venues, I felt I had no real control over their fate," Adams explains. "An artwork could go missing without any means to find or claim it back. With plans to send the artwork all over the United States and eventually to Europe, I had to start protecting my investment."
